A MIRAGE

Foolhardy, naive and tactless in the extreme is the only way I can characterize the Good Friday sermon of the Priest-Vicar of St. Alban's Cathedral, Toronto. He seems to belong to that category of men who speak best when wholly undisturbed by the facts. Though recently here from England, he already prophesies the mass conversion of the Jews of Canada to Christianity. I am sure that every intelligent Christian who understands the situation here was astounded at this statement:

"Large numbers of Jews in Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg and Halifax are to-day secret disciples of Christ and would openly cherish the Christian Church were it not for fear of social and ecclesiastical excommunication and the forfeiture of all worldly prospect.

"They object to being classed any longer as Hindus, Mohammedans and other infidels. As soon as wealthy, powerful Jews in Canada will have the courage of their convictions to come out boldly for Christ there will be thousands of Jews who will follow their example and become converted to Christianity."

We are actually surprised to hear that such nonsense could be preached in the Anglican Cathedral of Toronto. I am sure that many Anglicans are also surprised, because of all the Protestant denominations in Canada the Anglicans are the least given to the proselytizing of Jews. They are too familiar with the failures of this sort of thing and too sensible to give their money to this sort of hopeless, thankless work.

I am reminded in this connection of the story that is told about the annual report of the Missionary Society in London, England, which every year records the conversion of one Jew, and always it is the same Jew. Perhaps it is by some occult power which leads the Priest-Vicar to announce the mass conversion of thousands of Jews to Christianity. In this case he sees more than I have been able to detect. The strangest thing about his prediction is that it comes just at the time when thousands upon thousands of Christians are being converted by modernism away from the pagan and heathen superstitions and miracles in which much of orthodox Christian theology is intertwined. The fact is that the tree of Christianity has become so thickly covered with the ivy of pagan superstitious theology that it is no longer possible to see the tree for the ivy. Modernism in the Church is endeavouring to prune the ivy tentacle off the tree in order that the tree of ethical truth in Christianity, which is basically Jewish, may be visible.

If there is any conversion, it is not of the Jew to Christianity but of Christians to Jewish ethics. We have heard of the conversion of Jews to many things, but never yet to Christianity in any large numbers, excepting under compulsion, such as was the case in the days of the Spanish Inquisition, and even then the great majority preferred death and banishment to conversion. In European countries some few Jews to-day may do it to secure entrance to the universities or to save their children from social ostracism by Christian society. It is seldom that one hears, however, of a Jew's conversion to Christianity out of religious conviction. This may happen, but is rare. It is still a far cry to mass conversion of Canadian Jewry to Christianity. I am inclined to believe that even the Church's evangelical attitude towards Jews has changed. There is growing up in our time among all religions a feeling of friendship and fellowship based on mutual respect, the one for the other. The idea that a man is eternally damned to perdition because he does not believe in your religion is so antiquated and nonsensical that no real modern theologian of any denomination believes it.

To speak of the Jews who gave the Christian world its Saviour, its Bible, old and new, its Church and all that is still fundamentally true in its teachings—to call them infidel is to make one's self ridiculous. Are not Jewish ethics on a par with Christian ethics—and are not Jews just as moral as Christians? Then why convert them?

It is true that liberal Jews are not so narrow as to hold Christianity responsible for the acts and deeds of many who call themselves Christians- we appreciate that there is a hiatus between them. There are, and always were, many who though calling themselves Christians are in reality only Gentiles, a Christian, to my way of thinking, being one who lives up to the teachings of Jesus, whilst a Gentile is one who, whilst professing to believe in these teachings, seldom, if ever, carries them into practice.

The liberal Jew regards Jesus as a Jewish teacher who lived and died for his people. His teachings, especially as recorded in the Sermon on the Mount, I regard as a string of Pharasaic pearls selected from the jewel box of Jewish lore. We believe that he came, not to destroy or replace the Torah, but to fulfill it.

His saying that "the Sabbath is made for man and not man for the Sabbath" is a paraphrase of the old Pharasaic teaching, "the Sabbath is given in your charge; you are not given in its charge." Jesus did not teach a new morality. He merely restated and carried out in his own life the great moral teachings of the Hebrew prophet who preceded and antedated him by many centuries. We liberal Jews are interested in rescuing and recovering the Jew Jesus from the maze of pagan superstition in which he and his teachings have been wrapped like a thick coil around a magnet by the Church. We are interested in restoring this Jesus and reclaiming him as the Jewish teacher that he was. If this is tatamount to Christian conversion, then I confess my conversion. Thus, too, Dr. Klausner, the Jewish philosopher and author, whose recent book in Hebrew on the life of Jesus, acknowledged, by the way, to be the best life of Jesus yet published, and issued in Palestine last year and now being translated into English, is also guilty of conversion to Christianity. But I fear me those Christian priest-vicars who like the Priest-Vicar of St. Alban's, believe we are converting to Christianity, are sadly and badly mistaken. There is still a wall of partition, as Paul said, between you and us, and as long as your Christianity grows more orthodox and less reasonable and less scientific, the thicker that wall between you and us grows.

Judaism is a religion based on reason. Its teachings are not based on any miracles nor are they woven about the deification of any person or persons. Judaism has never feared and to-day has nothing to fear from new scientific discovery and has always found it possible and desirable to bring its doctrines into harmony and accord with science. We welcome science as the handmaid of true religion. Already in the Middle Ages the Jewish philosopher, Gersonides (1281-1344), expressed the Jewish view when he stated: "I admit the possibility of a conflict between reason and revelation, but declare that the Bible cannot prevent us from holding that to be true which our reason prompts us to believe. Baruch Spinoza also expounded this Jewish philosophy of religion.

Can the orthodox Christian theologians maintain such an attitude? If they can, why are they fighting the modernists in their midst who are merely trying to introduce the Jewish attitude into their religious views. Why are the orthodox Christian theologians, like the Priest-Vicar of St. Alban's, so afraid

PERFORMANCE BY SHEFLER STUDENTS AT WINDSOR HOTEL

Next Monday evening will be a gala night for the students of Shefler's Dancing Studio, when they will present their Annual Dance Recital in the Windsor Hall, under the direction of Mr. Geo. W. Shefler. An interpretation of the different types of dancing—Oriental, Grecian, Classic, Ballet and Denishawn dances will be given. Music will play a prominent part in the programme. The students will be supported by a musical trio consisting of Mary Beetles, pianist, Bert LaFrance, violinist, and Julliet LaFrance, 'celloist, such composers as Schumann, Chopin, Noskowski, Strauss, Elgar and Luigini being among those represented. Everyone, from the little tots of six to the older members in their 'teens, is most enthusiastic in preparation for this event and Mr. Shefler has every reason to believe that a most interesting and entertaining evening's performance will be the result of his pupils' efforts.

Solo dances will be executed by Edythe Ziff, Baby Esther, Naomi Winter, Marjorie Lord, Shirley Ripstein, Rose Norris, Tony LaFrance, Betty Viney, Lois McGilp, Guyla-Mae Babbitt, Pansy Hoffman and Doris Vallance.

The recital will be followed by a supper dance. Music will be rendered by the Society Syncopators.

RADIO BATTERY ECONOMY

To completely enjoy your Radio set, learn to operate it economically. There are practically only two parts which, with constant operation, wear out -tubes and batteries. Barring accidents, the tubes will give faithful performance for many months. The batteries, because of their ACTIVE part in radio operation, do become exhausted and need to be replaced with fresh batteries.

To get the greatest economy in radio batteries always use Eveready. long life is built into them at the factory, under the supervision of the greatest electro-chemical laboratory in the world. Eveready batteries are made in sizes for every radio purpose- each battery gives the longest service for its size of any radio battery made.

THE ANTI-SEMITIC COMPLEX

In our Literary Supplement to-day, there will be found a curious sidelight on that obscure mental complex called anti-Semitism, in a brief notice of a new book by Mr. J. B. S. Haldane, a brilliant young scientist, and a son and nephew of men of learning. He is writing about chemical warfare in the past and the future, and remarks that "German respirators were bad to begin with and later on were not so good as the British," in the course of the Great War. The Germans had the opportunity of improving their respirators, but "the most competent physiologist in Germany with any knowledge of breathing was a Jew. This fact," says Mr. Haldane, "was quite well known in German physiological circles, but apparently his race prevented the military authorities from employing him." Mr. Haldane does not disguise his conviction that this "was how the Germans paid for anti-Semitism: it is very probable that it lost them the war."—Jewish Guardian.

The daughter of the late Lord, before marrying Edwin Montague, embraced Judaism. Lord Sheffield, during the war was one of the leading opponents to the conscripting of Russian Jews resident in England. Goodwill conferences are the order of the day. A recent one was the Conference of Jews and Christians organized by the social service committee of the Liberal Jewish Synagogue of London, England, with committees from Christian organizations, for the purpose of bringing about a better understanding between Gentiles and Jews. The expenses of the conference were defrayed by voluntary contributions. At the first meeting there were nearly 400 Christians and nearly 200 Jews, representing all shades of belief in both religions.

Another one was the joint meeting of Committees on Goodwill between Jews and Christians, of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ of America and the Central Conference of American Rabbis, to promote mutual understanding and goodwill in place of suspicion and illwill. These committees declared that they had no proselytizing purpose, condemned the Klan and declared it their endeavour "to formulate a programme by which to realize the high purposes and noble endeavours of mutual goodwill and helpfulness."

Last month America's Goodwill Union arranged a service at Grace Episcopal Church in New York, where delegates marched from the Union Theological Seminary, the General Episcopal Theological Seminary and the Jewish Theological Seminary, to see Rabbi D. DeSola Pool, of Shearith Israel, present the church with an American flag as a token of goodwill between Gentile and Jew.

In 1928, in Geneva, there will be held a Congress of All Religions to make religion count in international goodwill and justice. Representatives will meet to adopt plans looking toward the agreement by all religions that emphasis on human brotherhood is essential to all religions; that world peace can be established only through the recognition of universal brotherhood; that the religions can co-operate by each working in its own sphere for the attainment of these ideals.

It sounds very inspiring, lofty, assuring and simple. All they have to do in any goodwill conference is to work out practical plans toward the realization of their ideals. It is highly commendable that the leaders of the religions are standing for goodwill and a more understanding attitude on the part of all. But that is not enough. The trick is to have goodwill applied in the daily lives of the people of all religions. When the conferences are over and the representatives have gone home again, will they use as a practical guide anything they thrashed out in meeting? In other words, what lay people want to know is: Will the Jew be led out of his suspicion of the Gentile? Will Christian ministers still allow it taught from Sunday school and pulpit that the Jews killed Christ? Will there be less unfair discrimination in this world and will there be fewer "Christ-killers" and "sheenies" among Jewish children?

These lines are written to a Christian lady. For you are a Christian lady, aren't you? You believe in Jesus and his teaching - "do unto others as you would have them do unto you." You call your home a good Christian home, where you are bringing up your children to be good Christian children. You pray and go to church and support missions and all that.

Then why did you call in that little Jewish girl from the street in front of your house in your exclusive section and tell her that she couldn't play there any more? That you and your neighbours didn't like it? Is that your way of applying religion to your daily life? How could you invite such a meek, baby sacrifice to the altar of your bigotry and cruelty? She is only a wee bit of a girl, five years old or so, sweet and gentle, soft-spoken, with trusting big eyes. If you had no idea of common decency, still your mother heart should have directed you away from such an act.

That child believed you when you said she had no right to play on the public street where your children run about. She went home white and shaking, too frightened to cry, a little pariah for whom there is no room on that long, winding street of yours. There should be redress for what you did, but there isn't and never could be in the world. What compensation could one set for a wrong impression engraved irretrievably upon a child's sensitive mind? When you stamped that impression you went out of your way to contribute to the child's education. You had her learn far too soon that Christians are often people who make Jews feel inferior, who tell them where they may go, what they may do.

But your act does not stop there. It teaches your own children the race-hate that animates your kind. It makes quiet, unoffending Jewish citizens want to be the first to build spite fences. It drives to retaliation and racial antagonism even thinking people who hate these things the most. It makes your kind the despair of your ministers who talk to you of tolerance, human sympathy, the brotherhood of man, while all the time you are engendering race prejudice, neutralizing their work, mocking at your greatest teacher, demonstrating how the strong can treat the weak, how the big can treat the little, and delaying for a long, long time the day when Christians will be converted to Christianity, if ever.

EDITORIAL

of the doctrine of evolution and scared out of their wits about the findings of modern science? It is because they fear that their whole theology will crumble if they admit the dictates of reason and the findings of science. Yet this Fundamentalist Priest-Vicar is so short-sighted as to believe that just as this juncture when all seems to be in favour of the Jewish religious outlook, that Jews are converting to orthodox Christianity? How preposterous!

And what is even more preposterous is that religious leaders in this critical time, when men and women in the thousands and hundreds of thousands, are drifting from religion altogether, should be arguing about converting civilized people from one religion to another. The real problem to-day of all religious teachers, of all creeds, is not converting the believers of one creed to believe in the dogma of the other, but how to built up the intellectual position of each religion so as to check the drift from religion altogether. It is for us all a question of a generation with God or without God. I fear that without concerted effort the rising generation will be one without God. And in the midst of all this comes this naive Priest-Vicar with a prophecy about Jewish mass conversion. Truly there are none so blind as those who will not see.

I would advise the Priest-Vicar and all who think as he does to stop worrying or bothering about saving the Jews, and to devote themselves to the leakage and drift in their own midst. What they need is to convert more so-called Christians to Christianity. I recommend this as the best method of converting the Jew. When Christians will practice "Love thine enemies," will abolish the evils of Christian society, cease to wage war, and institute peace, when they are prepared to turn the other cheek, all of which the Jew Jesus taught, then we Jews will be prepared to talk terms with them about conversion. Until then the Christians ought to let the Jews alone and set their own house in order. In this connection Dr. Glenn Frank, the editor of the Century Magazine recommends to the Church the adoption of the following points:

Substitute the religion of Jesus for Christianity.

Make faith a matter of adventure rather than assent.

Preach the gospel of Jesus rather than the gospel about Jesus.

Apply as well as announce the principles of the religion of Jesus.

Modernize the religious vocabulary.

Emphasize the use of science by religion rather than the reconciliation of science to religion.

Break the chains that bind the Church to the State.

Define sin as something that hurts life rather than God.

Merge the sacred with the secular.

It is a good programme in this work of reconstructing the Christian Church. We wish them Godspeed. As for the Jews we will try to satisfy our spiritual needs in Judaism.

INCEPTION OF HOME SERVICE DEPARTMENT BY THE CONSUMERS' GAS COMPANY

On Wednesday, April 8, afternoon, Arthur Hewitt welcomed to the auditorium of the Gas Company ladies interested in home service. Every seat in the room was occupied. Mr. Hewitt expressed his pleasure as General Manager of the Gas Company in extending greetings and a hearty welcome to the ladies who had honoured him with their presence, on the occasion of the introduction of this new form of public service, "The Home Service."

It was his earnest hope that this Home Service Department would quickly find a place and a work to do in the community, the direct object of which was to stimulate and encourage the home-maker.

If we could succeed in helping the home-maker to find new interests in the ever old job of home-making, it would be worth while. How tired she must get of the three-times-a-day question: "What shall we eat?"

Mr. Hewitt introduced Miss Gladys Eaton, graduate of MacDonald Institute, Guelph, the lady who will be in charge of these demonstrations.

Miss Eaton also expressed her pleasure at meeting so many ladies and outlined the scope of the lectures, intimating at the same time her wish to be helpful and inviting questions.

Thereafter Miss Eaton demonstrated the preparation of four dishes.

FACTS ABOUT TEA SERIES—No. 3

Mountain-Grown Teas Best

The tea plant grows best in the pure cool atmosphere of a mountain tea garden. The higher the garden, the finer and more delicious the flavour of the tea. This is partly due to the clear sunshine on a high mountain side, partly to the more invigorating air, partly to the more frequent rainfall and perfect drainage. The largest and roughest leaf grown at an elevation of 7000 feet is much superior in flavour to the tiniest tip grown only 2000 feet above sea-level. All teas used in the "SALADA" blends are grown from 4000 feet to 7,500 feet elevation. The trademark "SALADA" is a guarantee of quality.

SHEA'S

A vaudeville bill with headline honours shared by Henry Bergman and Eva Puck and Sam White will please Shea's goers next week. Henry Bergman is presenting a skit called "Take it Easy, Winnie," with the Crisp Sisters and Lou Handman. Henry Bergman is one of vaudeville's and musical comedy's best known actors. There are few better-liked players than Mr. Bergman and few girls who are cleverer or prettier than the Crisp sisters. Mr. Handman is a popular song-writer.

Eva Puck and Sam White are musical comedy favorites. They were together in "Irene" and "Mary," two of the most successful musical comedies in recent years. They are now returning to vaudeville in a singing, dancing travesty called "Opera vs. Jazz."

Eddie Clayton and Frank Lennie are natural comedians. They will be seen in "A Sundae in London," by Claude W. Bostock. "Fifty Miles from Broadway" is a blend of urban and suburban comedy.

STANDARD THEATRE

The performances given at the Standard Theatre by Mr. and Mrs. Louis Birnbaum were greatly enjoyed by all who attended, and therefore the management have extended their engagement for three more performances, on April 17 and 18, when they will produce a new comedy by Toivia Shmachel a contributor of the "Jewish Daily Forward," New York.

The play is called "Galician Millionaires." It also has several numbers of fine music, giving Mrs. Birnbaum an opportunity to delight her audiences with her marvelous coloratura soprano.

Mr. Birnbaum has also shown his audiences that he is an artist capable of giving utmost satisfaction.

Archaeological discoveries recently made reveal for the first time the influence of the Bible on the Tartar race, according to the announcement of scientists in Moscow. Tartar coins found in a glazed vessel curiously inscribed in Arabic, indicate that the writer was apparently a person acquainted with Biblical literature. The text contains several approximations of Biblical phrases, including a sentence approximating the verse, "Blessed is the man who walketh not in the counsel of the ungodly." This opens up the interesting question to what extent the Tartars were acquainted with Biblical literature. The discovery was made by scientists who had been making a survey of great quantities of material packed away and forgotten for many years in the store-rooms and vaults of Russian museums. One notable find is the seal of the Persian monarch, King Artaxerxes, presumably either Artaxerxes I. who reigned 465-424 B.C., or Artaxerxes III, who reigned 359-338 B.C. The cylinder differs from that of King Darius in the British Museum in that the inscription is unaccompanied by any Babylonian or Anshan translation. It is being studied by specialists, and will be exhibited in the Oriental Section of the Fine Arts Museum in Moscow.

Representatives of various Hungarian Jewish societies in New York tendered a reception at the Ohab Zedek Synagogue last week to Dr. Desider Baltasar, bishop of the Reformed Church of Hungary, a liberal Protestant clergyman who is distinguished by his firm friendship for the Jewish people.
